Habibi is doing so good. She has taken well to the horses and cat. She walks into her crate at night without fussing and waits patiently and quietly till morning. I cannot believe how smart a dog she is! We were leaving the side door to the house open to let her come in and out as she pleases, but she has grown fond of the ditch/creek next to the house and instead of being white, she is mud black most of the time! She seems to like taking baths with the hose outside which has become a daily routine before coming in. She is excellent with the kids and wants to eat the chickens [they're fenced off]. To put it plainly, she has fit right in and has become a lovely blessing to our household.
