Just wanted to let you know that King is doing great. I just love him. He is the most precious big guy. I have taken him to the vet a couple of times to get his ears flushed out. He gets a bath too and then roams around their office until I pick him up at the end of the day. They think he is so sweet. I bought him the biggest dog bed that I could find that had a rim on it because his head kept falling off the other ones. He really likes his bed. He loves being on the farm and roaming around.
