[Mulder] is in his 5th week of obedience classes, and picking up everything very fast. He has been eating well, and is filling out like a real dog. He is learning dog manners at the dog park and enjoys running around after people and other dogs (he has no desire to chase balls or frisbees though). He is still very much a puppy. Once he has finished obedience, we would like to start him in agility or herding as a fun activity for him. We are very happy to have him, as while he can be a goof (falling off the couch constantly), he is a great addition to our home.

So we took Mulder (Mason) to the vet today. They were very nice, had separate waiting rooms for cats and dogs, and many of the doctors had shepherds themselves.
